

i feel that the interfering party is liable for fixing their problem. i feel it is unreasonable to cause others to be dragged into their mess. nextel(aka motorola) has already admitted guilt. they should move to a different band which would allow public safety more band space that is needed. they have 500 million dollars "available" to do this move on their own. they should need an "act of fcc".simple and to the point. of course their plan is to benefit themselves as they have already admitted. need i say more? this is my opinion.
